The Queen Reported Delighted-Probabl Combinations-The Policy of the Conservatives-Foreign and Irish Affairs. [By cable to the Dispatch.]

LONDON, June 13 .- The Queen, it is said is delighted over Gladstone's downfall. The Parnellites, who accomplished his overthrow, are going to encounter the hardest times they have ever had. The Marquis of Salisbury, everybody begins to see, lacks self-confidence. He has been bold but never far-sighted as a leader of the opposition, but the very moment the Gladstone Ministry resigned the Marquis of Salisbury became a supplicant for public would not take the power unless the Liberals " gave his government a show." Gladstone never asked "a show" from anybody. The Queen could not conceal her satisfaction over the change in politics. She never liked Gladstone. He was too superior to etiquette, could not flatter, and was impatient as State servant to the throne. Her Majesty was so pleased over the prospect of again having a Tory and an aristocrat at the head of affairs that she telegraphed her acceptance of Gladresignation, and by wire sumnoned the Marquis of Salisbury to Balmoral to accept the trust of forming a new government. It is under-stood that the Marquis of Salisbury will refrain from entering upon the work of forming a new Cabinet until after he has had a conference with all the Conservative leaders.

Singular as it may appear to foreigners, the chief political interest of the Britons just now does not seem to be in the construction of a new Ministry, but principally in the foreign policy secondly in the Irish policy of the Conservative Government. Parnell certainly must have the measure of his ambition nearly filled, when he has succeeded in making the affairs of Ireland the most important subject of British interest after English foreign

When the Irish members on Mon day night threw their votes with the Tories and wrought the ruin of the Ministry that gave Ireland Church disestablishment and a land act, they jumped upon their seats and hurrahed. were then certain that the Tories. lifted into power by Irish help, would at once "Parnellize" the Government; but the Tories having recovered from their first excitement, appear to attribute Gladstone's defeat not to his harshness toward Ireland, but to the loss of Liberal votes driven from him by disgust at his submission to Irish "bulldozing." Now, this disgusted Liberal vote " is far larger than the Home-Rule vote. The Torie knew this. They are wise in their day and generation. They are playing for a larger vote, and the Irish are "going to get left." The Conservative party is largely controlled by the prevalent opimon of the Tory clubs. The Carlton and other leading Tory clubs all favor the theory advanced by Earl Spencer, the Irish Viceroy, that there an absolute necessity for a continuance of the coercion policy in Ireland. On this point the Tories and a majority of the Liberals will agree, and on it they may combine against the Radicals and Parnellites. It they do the Home-Rulers will be in such a pitiable minority that their voice will count for nothing in Parliament, and a long lease of life will be secured to the present

It is not believed that the Marquis of Salisbury will seek assistance from any of the Cladstone Ministers in forming his policy towards Ireland. His plan will be to split the Liberal party completely by proposing a measure of coercion based on Earl Spencer's reports-a measure the same as the Marquis of Hartington, Gladstone's War Minister, and a majority of Gladstone's Cabinet insisted on continuing in spite of the opposition of Sir Charles Dilke, Joseph Chamberlain, and Mr. Trevelvan. Such a line of Irish policy would be almost certain to lead to at least a temporary conlition between the Moderate Liberals and the Torics against the Radicals and Parnellites, and give the new Government a tremendous majority. would be hard to guess what would become of Irish home-rule under a government whose very start in power was based on its determination to maintain coercion in Ireland.

Sir Stafford Northcote, the Tory leader in the Commons, has already been in consultation with the Irish executive officials concerning the real state of affairs in Ireland, and it is understood that nearly every one of these centlemen has stated that no English Government could afford to be responsible for the government of Ireland during the coming winter without a con-Stafford can easily acquire testimony that will bolster up his intentions towards Ireland.

Lord Randolph Churchill, it may be safely stated, is the only one of the men likely to form the Conservative Cabinet who is at all likely to advocate the abandonment of coercion. His influence will be far less with his party when it is in power than it appeared to be when he was an opposition leader in the House of Commons, Telegrams from Balmoral indicate that in the conferences which have taken place between the Queen and the Marquis of Salisbury her Majesty has shown that she is concerned most about the foreign pelicy of her Government. In court circles there is longer any concealment the rejoicing over the fall of Liberal Government. Mr. Gladstone, the court officials now admit, was never in harmony with the Queen on any subject, and her Majesty and the Premier disagreed bitterly all their discussions about England's foreign affairs. Mr. Gladstone, it is said, rarely consulted the Queen or informed her of the designs of his tiovernment. In well-informed circles it is thought that the Queen strongly favors a renewal of the Soudan campaign, the retention of Egypt, the settlement of the Anglo-Russian dispute on the basis of the Granville-Giers agreement, the renewal of the alliance with Germany, an entente with Turkey, and no special cultivation of an entente with France. A policy embracing all these principles has all along been approved by all the permanent officials in the British Foreign Office, amongst whom the Glad-stone regime had become intensely disliked.

Sir Peter Lumsden has asked the promoters of the fund now being raised to secure for him a "sword of honor" to suspend further action in the matter until his relations with the War Office are in a more settled state

The Prince of Leiningen, it is nounced officially, will succeed Admiral Corbett at the end of the current month of June. The Prince of Leiningen belongs to the royal navy, and at present commands the royal yacht Victoria and Albert. He is a son of the late Charles Frederick, Prince of Leiningen, who was half-brother to the This appointment and the nomination of a prince of Saxe-Wei-mar to succeed Major-General Steel damage was done on either side.

dered the payment of £100 to each widow of a Canadian voyageur in the Nile expedition. It is also ordered that the mothers of the voyageurs shall be paid £50 each. The failure of the Hatton-Garden 000 has caused a semi-panic in the Lon-firm of diamond merchants for $500,don diamond trade, in which other serious failures are now looked for. The market for diamonds has for many months been extremely depressed. The long-continued quarrel between Queen Victoria and her son-in-law, Louis, Grand Duke of Hesse-Darmstadt, because of the latter's Morganatic marriage to Mme. Kolomine, has, it is said, been amicably ended. The Duke, who before the discovery of the Kolomine affair was believed to be a suitor for the hand of Princess Beatrice, who, according to report, he was to marry as soon as Parliament passed the deceased-wife's-sister bill, will now, according to recent announcement, soon be married to the Princess of Hamult-Dessau. The marriage of Princess Beatrice to Prince Henry, of Battenburg, will not after all be such "a quiet affair" as it was first intended. In fact, the Queen seems to have made up her mind to marry off her last daughter with a great deal of pomp and ceremony. She has issued orders for a large increase of invitations to the wedding, and the bridal cake, which is to be something quite extraordinary in confectioners' art, will weigh 250 pounds. No member of the royal family of Germany is to be invited to the wedding.

From Brussels it is reported concerning the Empress Charlotte, the unfortunate widow of Maximillian, of Mexico, that a marvellous improvement is noticeable in her mental condition. The Empress entered her forty-sixth year Thursday last, and the physicians who have been attending her have observed recently that her health has grown to be excellent, and that the malady which for years has oppressed her brain has been gradually disappearing.

From Paris it is learned that the Bonapartist manifesto recently issued by the supporters of Prince Victor Napo leon has fallen flat in the provinces where it excites no attention at all. The ex-Empress Eugenie and Princesses Clothilde and Mathilde are, it is reported, engaged in a conspiracy to supplant Victor as the pretender to the Bonapartist succession by his brother, Prince Louis. The latter, however, refuses, it is said, to be a party to this conspiracy.

STILL UNCERTAIN. LONDON, June 13 .- The Marquis of Salisbury is on his way to London from Balmoral. His acceptance of the re-sponsibility to form a Cabinet is still uncertain.

WANTED SALISBURY TO SPEAK. EDINBURGH, June 13 .- The Marquis of Salisbury passed through here this evening on his way from Balmoral to London. He was met at the station by a large crowd of enthusiastic Conservatives, who vainly clamored for a BIRMINGHAM LIBERALS.

BIRMINGHAM, June 13 .- The Liberal caucus has adopted in its programme for the campaign the proposals formulated by the recent miners' parliamentary conference. These proposals call for the reformation of the House of Lords by the exclusion of bishops from seats, and by specific limitation of the power of peers to delay or prevent necessary legislation.

THE COBDEN CLUB.

land. LONDON, June 13 .- The annual dinner of the Cobden Club took place tonight. Among the speakers were Sir Charles Dilke, who said that although England had great interests in Egypt other European Powers were also entitled to a voice in the settlement of the future of that country. Those Powers, however, ought to give a guarantee for the neutrality of Egypt similar to that establishing the neutrality of Belgium. He believed that the cooperation the Powers and the Porte would ensure tranquillity in Egypt. In respect to Ireland, he said he desired for that country the same forms of good government as for England. He urged Englishmen to give Ireland the same municipal and imperial franchises as are enjoyed by themselves. Englishmen, he said, have no conception of the imperfections of the cipal government or meaning of the grand-jury system (or grievance) imposed upon the people of Cork, Limerick, and Belfast. These people are compelled to obtain the sanction of England for every small private bill affecting local interests. These abuses, he contended, were a source of weakness and danger to English connections.

THE CHOLERA.

Ite Rapid Sprend in Spain. (By cable to the Bispatch.) MADRID, June 13 .- There were five deaths from cholera here to-day and five fresh cases were reported. In the city of Murcia yesterday twenty fresh cases were reported and four deaths. At other places in the province of Murcia there were fifteen fresh cases and eight deaths. In the province of Castellon there have been altogether sixty-five cases of the disease and thirty-six deaths. The Official Gazette publishes a decree ordering the establishment of lazarettos in the infected provinces. The decree also orders that all travellers shall be examined by physicians and fumigated before being allowed to proceed. The French and Monte Carlo

By cabe to the Dispatch. PARIS, June 13 .- The French Government has decided to suppress the gaming-tables at Monte Carlo, M. Schoelcher, reporter of the French senatorial committee which has been investigating the entire subject of gambling at this famous resort, has written a letter to the association formed to break up the games that the Government will no longer tolerate the criminal enterprise carried on at Monte Carlo, and which disgraces that fragment of French territory. The Prince of Monaco, who owns the gambling establishment at Monte Carlo, declares that the French Government has no jurisdiction over his property, and that he will resist its efforts to interfere with his business.

Not a Knock-Out for Sullivan. By telegraph to the Disputch CHICAGO, June 13 .- Jack Burke boxed five rounds with John Sullivan to-night, and although the fight was awarded to Sullivan, it was no "knock-out" for him. Burke weighed 170 pounds and Sullivan 237, but Burke's agility, science, and nerve enabled him to go through five rounds without be ing squarely knocked down, although several times pushed and fought down at close quarters, at the same time making it very warm for Sullivan.

AN IOWA CYCLONE.

CARS WRESTLING WITH WIND

The Imperial Government has or-A Passenger Train Untracked While Goin nt Full Speed-Miraculous Escape of Pas [By telegraph to the Dispatch.]

SIOUX CITY, IOWA, June 13 .-wrecking-train has just left for the scene of a wreck on the Sioux Falls line of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad. The accident occurred near McCook, a small station across the line in Dakota, about seven miles northwest of here. There were two passenrer-coaches and a baggage- and mail-car. The train was going at nearly full speed when it was struck by a cyclone. Every car was blown from the track and the engine partially so. There were between sixty and seventy pas sengers in the cars, and most of them miraculously escaped with slight in juries. L. M. Scott, express-messen ger, was badly hurt and is supposed to be internally injured. An old couple, whose names were not learned, were also quite severely injured, but it is thought not fatally. Nearly every passenger on the train suffered scratches, bruises, or contusions, but, save those mentioned above, no on was badly hurt. The storm was very severe and the telegraph-wires are prostrated in all directions. Along the Pacific line six miles of wires are lying on the ground.

Heavy and Damaging Rain

[By telegraph to the Dispatch.] KEOKUK, IOWA, June 13,--Heav torms prevailed through this section last night. Bridges on the Rock Island railroad were washed out, and there will probably be no trains to or from Des Moines until to-morrow night. Other railroads are all right. The Egyptian levee broke three miles above Des Moines, the river overflowing the land and causing great damage to crops.

FARMINGTON, IOWA, June 13 .- A special to the Daily Constitution says the heaviest rain known there for years fell last night. Railway bridges were washed out in many places and trains delayed, the streets and houses flooded. and several houses and barns were struck by lightning.

The Landerdale Case.

I ONI ON, June 13 .- At the hearing to-day of the Landerdale peerage case before the House of Lords United States Senator Edmunds and Mr. Fowler exas given to the House of Lords Friday, respecting the New York marriage laws of 1772. Messra. Edmunds and Fowler believed that the publication of banns or the obtaining of a license was necessary, but they were unable to cite any judicial decisions showing that marriage performed without such ceremonies had ever been annulled.

HANGED HIMSELF.

[Special telegram to the Dispatch.] LYNCHBURG, VA., June 13 .- Intelligence was received here to-night that on yesterday morning Samuel Worley, who lived near the line between Scott and Washington counties, hanged himself to a tree a short distance from his house. He had been missing but a very short while, when some one passing along the road discovered him. No cause for the suicide is known. Worley was about twenty-eight years of age, and leaves a wife and three small children. His domestic relations were very pleasant. About two months ago Mike Worley, brother of Samuel, hanged himself near the same place. The community is shocked, and can advance no theory as to the cause of the mysterious self-murders. ROCKINGHAM.

The Republicans Elect Delegates to The State Convention

[Special telegram to the Dispatch.] HARRISONBURG, VA., June 13 .-The Republican County Convention to send delegates to the Richmond Convention met here to-day. The Mahone faction had things all their own way, the anti-Mahone men not taking part. Lieutenant-Governor Lewis, who was elected a delegate, and ex-United-States-Attorney Lewis took no part. tions were passed endorsing Mahone's past acts and pledging the delegates to vote for his retention as chairman of the State Committee. The delegates go unpledged as to Governor, &c. The atendance was comparatively small and the proceedings flat and tiresome. August the 17th was fixed as the time for holding the convention to nominate candidates for the Legislature. Rocking-ham is all right for the Democracy.

Convicted of Manslaughter. [By telegraph to the Dispatch.] NORRISTOWN, PA., June 13 .- The jury in the case of Alexander Steele after being out one hour and three quarters, came in for instructions as to whether malice must be shown to constitute murder in the second degree After instructions they retired, and returned in a few minutes with a verdict of manslaughter. Steele was an attendant at the insane asylum, and Castor was an inmate. Steele beat his victim so severely that he was soon afterwards found dead in bed, with a number of his ribs broken. One broken rib had pierced his heart. Woman's Board of Missions

By telegraph to the Dispatch. KNOXVILLE, TENN., June 13 .- The Woman's Board of Missions, composed of representatives from each conference in the Southern Methodist Church, after ten days' session in this city, adjourned to-day to meet in Augusta, Ga., next June. The meetings were largely attended. The Board appropriated $51,-000 to carry on missionary work for the coming year. The amount spent on Chinese missions last year was $23,000. A number of returned missionaries to China and other countries attended the meeting.

(By telegraph to the Dispatch.) Osgood, O., June 13 .- Turner Graham and his wife (colored) were killed by a mob armed with shot-guns after midnight of Thursday. Graham was a barber. Both he and his wife were addicted to drink, and were quarrelsome, although harmless to others. They had been away during the early part of the night, and when they returned a mob riddled them with shot. The coroner began an inquest yesterday. No arrests have yet been made.

An Old Church Burned

MIDDLETOWN, CONN., June 13 .-Between 4 and 5 o'clock this morning the Methodist Episcopal church in this town was burned. It was one of the oldest and best-known Methodist churches in New England. It was erected in 1804 and rebuilt in 1828. The cause of the fire is unknown. The value of propressed epinions contrary to those of perty destroyed is $40,000; insurance, Minister Phelps and Mr. Stephen Nash, $22,000.

ELMIRA'S SILENT CITY.

GRAVES OF SOUTHERN MEN. Three Thousand Ex-Confederates- De

tiot . Dat -The Unknown - louchtug Inci A correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch writes from Elmira as follows: Woodlawn cemetery, lying just definitely. without the city limits, is a spot of considerable historic interest. Here, on a gravelly knoll, gently sloping to the north, rest the remains of 4,000 Union soldiers. Many of them fell in the field, but not a few died while in camp here-waiting for orders to move on to the front, or guarding the rebel prisoners. A little stream, fringed with willows and purling noisily over the pebbly bed, separates the knoll from a level plat of ground, containing about two or three acres, and smooth as a lawn The surface shows no signs of the remains slumbering beneath, save two or three moss-grown head-stones, placed at irregular intervals. Even these mark no mounds, and but slightly conspire to break the monotony of the velvety green sward. Underneath this sod deep 3,000 men who wore the gray They ware mostly the victims of the small-pox epidemic which raged with such virulence in the prison in the win ter of 1864. At the close of the war some were transposed to southern soil, but most of them were left to rest here side by side with their brothers who fought in the blue. Though their graves are unmarked either by mound or monument, they are not lost. The sexton can locate the resting-place of each man, with his name and regiment. At the close the war wooden headboards marked each grave. These in time decayed. and no provision was made for re-storing them. It was finally decided to remove them altogether and level the ground, thus obliterating all outward traces of their tion. Shortly after the war the city was visited by a number of souther people. They came to find, if possible, the fate of missing friends. In a few cases the remains were carried back but in most instances the natural beauty of the burial-place and the care taken of the graves decided them upon leaving their dead to lie here at rest. Three or four simple marble headstones scattered over the ground show the last tribute of wife or mother to a loved one's memory.

An interesting incident recalled these facts to my mind on memorial-day Local posts of the G. A. R. were re verently decking the graves of dead comrades. Many another grave throughout the cemetery, by the flowers placed upon it, showed that the memory of its ccupant was kept green in some heart Not a few people, as they passed up the walk by the little brook, skirting the Confederate graves, noticed with curious eyes that one of the sleeping rebels had been remembered. A wreath of white immortelles and a simple bunch of violets lay beside one of the head-

It was placed there, I was told, by an old negro. While the rebel prison was in existence John Brown, an ex-Virginia slave, had charge of the burial of the dead. Even then Brown was getting to be an old man. He had come North over the "Underground rail road" a few years before, and settled in the city. One day, in preparing a corpse for burial, he noticed a silk undershirt of a quality entirely too fine and costly to be in keeping with his coarser and cheaper outer garments. Closer investigation revealed a name embroidered in the neck of th garment. It was the son of his old master. Many times on the old plantation he had held the boy on his knees in the colored quarters. the dead boy touched his heart almost as if it had been his own flesh and Carefully, and maybe tear fully, he laid the young master at rest and as soon as peace was established wrote the family of their son's fate The father and brother had both died during the war, and the mother was left alone, nearly penniless. Nevertheless, she came on and remained several days Her means would not permit her taking the remains back with her, I with the help of her former slave raised a simple headstone to mark his grave. She again visited Elmira about a year later, and shortly afterward passed to join her sons and husband in another land. The old man has always cared for the grave, and each recurring memorial-day finds upon it some floral tribute to the memory of the "young mastah." One other incident was related to me by one of the cemetery custodians. In the latter part of May, 1868, a handsome, well-dressed lady, clad in deep mourning, arrived in the city and regitered at one of the hotels as Mrs. Grancer, Richmond, Va. She visited Her son, her only living relative, had the cemetery and found the sexton. been in the Confederate army, and was captured and sent to Elmira. Nothing further was ever heard of him, and she believed that he slept with his comrades in the cemetery. ecords showed no such name as John Granger among the list of buried, but there were several written down as "Unknown." One of these she was certain was her son. After spending two or three days about the city she left for her home again. Each succeeding year found the still sorrowing mother by the spot where she believed her son lay sleeping. After the 30th of May was set apart as a day of special commemoration of the dead soldiers, she chose that as the time for her visit. While the old veterans, with flags flying and bands playing, were marching to the resting-place of their sleeping comrades, the little woman in black might be seen walking slowly back and forth over the ground which covered her countrymen, seemingly oblivious to all surroundings. But one decoration day she failed to come. A lady wh had become acquainted with her stor wrote to her Virginia home and received the response that she had died of heartdisease while preparing for her annual

NEW ORLEANS, June 13 .- The Liberty-bell train left here this morning, according to programme. A large party was present and witnessed the departure of the train, and salutes were red and whistles blown.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., June 13 .-The Liberty bell arrived from New Orleans to-night in charge of Mayor Guillotte and a committee of the City Council of New Orleans. The bell was received here by the mayor and aldermen and a large number of citizens. The special train ran out to the camp of the Second Alabama regiment at about 9 o'clock. The camp was brilliantly illuminated, and the old bell was received with a national salute. The bell left for Philadelphia to-night.

Big Fire in Camden, N. J.

(By telegraph to the Dispatch.) CAMDEN, N. J., June 13.—A fire broke out to-day in Stockham's sawand planing-mill, Delaware and Vine streets, speedily destroying that estab-1 bment and the lumber-yard attached;

the lumber-yard of the Tudor & Co. kindling-wood factory, the tarred-rope factory, the workshop and yard of a heavy building contracting firm, and fifteen small buildings. The fire occurred during the heat of the day, and its spread was so rapid that everybody within its boundaries fled for their lives without stopping to carry anything along. The loss is variously estimated at from $60,000 upwards in-

BIG BEAR.

He Eludes General Middleton-A Chause of Plan.

[By telegraph to the Dispatch.] WINNIPEG, MAN., June 13 .- The following dispatch dated Fort Pitt, June 13th, gives the latest intelligence of Middleton's movements: General Middleton, with Colonel Herschmers, Bentons, and Dennis, mounted, and two Gatling guns, returned here last night from an unsuccessful chase of Big Bear. The morass, which prevented further progress, was a mile and a half wide and is situated near Loon lake. This afternoon orders were issued for all the mounted men and the Gatlinggun crew to hold themselves in readiness to proceed to Beaver river at 6 o'clock to-morrow morning. The General expects by this move to intercept Big Bear, as he is going almost due northward. The country to which he has retreated is terra incognita to white mer.-no trails, but a continued succession of holes, forests, and muskeges. The Ninetieth battalion and Grenadiers remain here.

A Dismal Failure

[By telegraph to the Dispatch.] BALTIMORE, June 13 .- The walking-match which commenced last Sunday night with such a flourish of trumpets and under such seeming favor able auspices came to a doleful termination to-night. Among the starters were Hart, Noremac, Elsen, Sweeney, Panchot, and others. To-night th solitary pedestrian, who claimed a few hundred dollars gate-money, was Panchot, who had wearily toiled around a fourteen-lap track until 505 miles had been scored to his credit.

After Sunday night the attendance dwindled down, until on Thursday the only people in the garden were the weary walkers, the policemen and trainers, and a score of waiters. One by one the walkers dropped out as they saw there would be nothing to divide, and the funeral of six-day walking matches was solemnized when the saddened manager returned to New York very much out of pocket.

Mysterious Shooting Affair.

[By telegraph to the Dispatch.] NEW ORLEANS, June 13.—A special to the Times-Democrat from Osyka, Miss., says: This morning the body of Dock McElvee, aged twenty-two years, residing ten miles east of here, was found on the roadside with ten buckshot in his head. He had eaten breakfast at his father's house but an hour before. On his person were found two of Rose Hill, his wife, and two children, revolvers, one of which was loaded, while the other had three chambers empty. The whole affair is involved in The Cotton-Worm

[By telegraph to the Dispatch.] GALVESTON, June 13 .- A special the News from Gainesville says: Full reports from the country tributary to Gainesville show that the worms so far destroyed about one half of the cotton crop. New seed has been ordered from other places and replanting has begun. Luling and Martin also report serious destruction of cotton in their vicinity by worms. Grain-Elevator Burned.

JUNE 13, 1885.
Offerings and breaks of bright tobace have shown but little variation in quality this week, and have been chiefly medium to good grades. Transactions in the aggregate have been satisfactory, with a bette demand for fillers in keeping order. Jood many sales were forced on account of the damaged and unsafe order. In fin brights there is little offering. Sales of the class are generally private. Several lot Regte tobaccos have been opened, and som sold at 8, 9, and 10c. In the next few week these breaks will be heavier and prices better established. Good dark stock for reprizing and manufacturing is in good demand without change in values. Commo logs only are rather easier. RICHMOND TOBACCO MARKET. ference of iron-workers and manufacturers was adjourned without result. The manufacturers offered a compromise, the nature of which is not known, and after a discussion of nearly ten hours over it the workmen rejected it. The manufacturers then asked for an-

New YORK, June 13,—The stock market was weak at the opening this norming, led by Factife Mail, which showed a loss of in consequence of the Postmaster-General's action on the question of compensation for mail service. The whole list was jak, lower at the opening, and there was a further slight decline in some stocks in the early dealines. The decline was soon followed, however, by a slight reaction, and after the first hour the market became very dull and strong without making further material advances, except in a few instances. Grangers and Louisville and Nashville reached their highest prices about 1 o'clock, a small fraction of which waslost in the next hour; but the afternoon trading can be described only as very dull and steady. The market closed steady at a gain of 'an's in most cases, but Pacific Mail and Lake Shore were down i, each, while New York Central was i, lower. On the other hand, Northwestern was up i, and St. Paul unchanged. The strong under-tone of the market was the only feature to-day. Sales, 114,000 shares. NEW YORK COTTON FUTURES,
